

Do you need a bike carrier for a...

Mountain bike

Road bike

Fat bike

Everyday family bike

eBike or pedal assist bike

Children's bike

Light bikes. Carbon frame models require extra care. Use a carrier that takes the weight of the bike on the wheels, and consider a carbon frame protector:

- ✓ A rooftop carrier like the Thule ProRide, Thule ThruRide or Thule OutRide
- ✓ A platform carrier like the Thule VeloCompact

The oversized (sorry, perfect size!) wheels need to be taken into account:

- ✓ The Thule T2 Pro and Thule VeloSpace platform carriers have large wheel baskets
- ✓ For a rooftop solution, use the Thule ProRide with a fat bike adaptor

Usually quite sturdy and a little heavy. Consider:

- ✓ A Thule platform carrier
- ✓ A hanging style Thule carrier (you may also need a frame adaptor to keep the bike level)
- ✓ A rear mounted carrier (again, you may need a frame adaptor)

These heavy bikes require a strong platform carrier:

- ✓ The Thule EuroPower was designed with eBikes in mind
- ✓ The Thule VeloSpace suits most styles of bike, including eBikes
- ✓ The Thule VeloCompact can carry up to 4 bikes including some lighter eBikes (check your bike weight and the carrier limits carefully)

Frames larger than 20" can be used with:

- ✓ A Thule ProRide rooftop carrier
- ✓ A hanging style Thule carrier
- ✓ A rear mounted carrier

Frames larger than 12" can be used with:

- ✓ The Thule VeloSpace platform carrier

Is it...

A downhill dual suspension bike

Any other style, carbon frame

Any other style, alloy frame

These have unusual frame shapes, so not all carriers will fit. You can use:

- ✓ The Thule SideArm, which is a rooftop carrier
- ✓ A platform carrier like the Thule T2 Pro

Carbon frames require care. Use a carrier that takes the weight of the bike on the wheels (just like when you're riding it):

- ✓ A rooftop carrier like the Thule ProRide
- ✓ A Thule platform carrier

A sturdy bike with many transport options:

- ✓ A rooftop carrier like the Thule ProRide
- ✓ A platform carrier like the Thule VeloCompact
- ✓ A hanging style carrier like a Thule Vertex

